

UCLA College | Undergraduate Education Center for Community Engagement

An introduction to collaboratory[®] Track • Report • Connect • Plan

Community engagement and public service remain essential components of the UCLA mission. But given the size of our university, understanding the breadth and depth of our engagement can be a challenge. In an effort to grasp the full extent to which we are accomplishing our community-engagement goals, UCLA has begun using Collaboratory, a secure web-based platform, to assist all of our faculty and staff in telling the story of their community and public engagement work in dynamic fashion. In this session, we will introduce how Collaboratory will allow those on campus to increase the visibility of your community engagement and public service activities by easily collecting and sharing them in one place, while facilitating opportunities for those in the community to find UCLA faculty and staff experienced in specific disciplines and impact areas.

Moderator:

- Doug Barrera, Ph.D., Associate Director for Faculty & Community Engagement, Center for Community Engagement

Panelists:

- Ellen Szarleta, Ph.D., J.D., Director of the Center for Urban and Regional Excellence and Professor in the School of Public and Environmental Affairs, Indiana University Northwest.
- Lauren Wendling, MS Ed, Customer Success Manager, Collaboratory
